FALLOWFIELD TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS SUFFER AT THE HANDS OF THIEVES

Chicken Roosts Depleted of Fine Fowls by Inroads of Marauders During Past Week.

MANY TURKEYS STOLEN

Approach of Thanksgiving Brings Visits of Marauders to Several Places Throughout the Country.

Fallowfield township residents and chicken owners have been suffering severely at the hands of chicken thieves during the past several days. Saturday night was a big night for these marauders, and it is estimated that from the various places visited there were between 100 and 150 chickens and turkeys taken, many of which had been fattened for the Thanksgiving market.

It is stated that the largest hauls were made from the chicken roosts of John Jones and Isaac Morris From each of these places, it is said, there were about 50 chickens taken. Several turkeys were also taken. Other places visited were the Charles Coulter, William McCracken, Earl Nelson and Lee Lutes farms

About a month ago Hiram Robinson suffered at the hands of chicken thieves and altogether there were about 42 chickens and 15 turkeys taken. It is supposed that the thieving was all done by some person who expected to dispose of the fowls or Thanksgiving.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN THE PRICE OF MEAT NOTED HERE

Pork Comes Down a Trifle, and Even Beef Steak Doesn't Cost Quite as Much as It Used To.

WINTER PRICES WILL NOT BE LOWER

After all the cry about the bottom dropping out of the bag that holds the meat prices, there is not much of a noticeable decrease in the price of meat products in Charleroi markets. Pork chops, sausage and the like have decreased within the past week from 2 to 5 cents a pound, but beef steak is selling at about the same price it has been all along.

A week ago meat men in Charleroi were selling pork chops at a average of 20 cents a pound, now the price per pound is 15 cents Sausage has dropped from 20 cents per pound to 15 cents and some kinds of pork steak have likewise gone down from 20 to 15 cents. Beef steak is generally selling at 16 cents per pound but there is somewhat of a range of prices It is the opinion of prominent butchers that there will not be much of a decline in prices during the winter in food stuffs. The packing house men are the ones who set the prices, and until they declare a decrese, the retail dealers can do little in that direction

A Step Backward

It is stated that the commission appointed by Governor Stuart to revise and codify the election laws of Pennsylvania has decided to recommend the vest pocket or envelope system of voting. This will give the voter the privilege of getting ballots the day before election, so that they can mark them in their own home or elsewhere seal them in an envelope, and deposit them in the ballot boxes on the day of election. The ostensible reason for this recommendation is to do away with assistance at the polls, whereby it is alleged voters are influenced and controlled on election day.

In view of previous experience with the unofficial ballots before the passage of the Baker ballot law, it is surprising that the commission should make such a recommendation. With ballots accessible outside of the booths on election day, they were marked, handed to the voter, and the latter led to the polls and voted by heelers and ward workers. In no other way can assistance, control or intimidation be more effectually worked than by having access to the ballots outside of the polls. There is little complaint of assistance in the election booths outsde of the large cities, and if this is really an abuse there should be other ways for correcting it than throwing the entire system open to manipulation and control the same as it was before the passage of the Baker ballot law. Surely such a recommendation as the vest pocket law cannot be made in the interests of ballot reform. Should it be adopted it will be a step backward.

A Progressive Platform

Following the sweep of insurgency at the recent elections, a currant periodical has codified Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's political policies as expressed in his Osawatomie speech. This the magazine terms a "Progressive Platform," the principal features of which are:

"Complete publicity of corporate affairs.

"Laws prohibiting the use of corporate funds directly or indirectly or political purposes, and thorough enforcement of them.

"Government supervision of the capitalization of public service corporations, particularly railways; and of all corporations doing an interstate business.

"Effective regulation of railways based on information which shall include physical valuation.

"Similiar control over all combinations which control necessaries of life or deal in them on an important scale.

"Personal responsibility of officers and directors of corporations who violate the law.

"Large increase of power for the Federal Bureau of Corporations and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"An expert tariff commission.

"Revision of the tariff, one schedule at a time, as fast as the commission can make recommendations.

"A graduated inheritance tax on big fortunes, increasing rapidly in amount with the size of the estate.

"Comprehensive workmen's compensation acts; State and national laws to regulate child labor and the work of women. The right to regulate 'the terms andconditions of labor.'

"Direct primaries, associated with a corrupt practices act and publicity of election expenses.

"An easy way to remove unfaithful or incompetent servants.

Forbidding of the receipt by any national officer elected or appointed of any compensation, directly or indirectly from interstate corporations"

This is a most radical platform, and it is hardly possible that all of its provisions could be approved by the people and carried out at one fell swoop. It is along the line of progressiveism—the point where the public service must eventually be divorced from politics and put on a purely business basis for the greatest good of the greatest number. This is the substance of the insurgent movement, government for the people, and the platform of Colonel Roosevelt at least is a guide, which though more or less idealistic at the pesent time, is nevertheless capable of incorporation into public approval and practice.

A Local Matter

Commenting upon a Washington newspaper's chagrin over the refusal of the grand jury to approve a soldiers and sailors memorial hall for Washington to be erected at the expense of the county, the Monongahela Time says:

"We can not do otherwise than approve of the action of grand jury as wise and just. If Washington wishes to have a memorial to the memory of the men who served in the civil war there is no one in the ccounty to object but let the citizens of that community go down into their pockets, like the veterans of Monongahela, did when they established a memorial to the honor of their dead comrades. The Monongahela Memorial Hospital is such an institution, promoted by the veteran of Monongahela, and all the expense of the launching and establishing of this undertaking was taken care of in this city and vicinity."

The Times is further of the opinion that if the county commissioners want to do something for the memory of the men who answered their country's call, it should be done locally. There are soldiers dead in every community who are as much entitled to have their memory perpetuated as those who went forth and gave up their lives from the county seat.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Let's see, has anytning been said about the tariff for two days?

It doesn't cost much to see men killed. Automobile races occur nearly every day and the admission fee is small.

Champ Clark of Missouri is announced by Democratic papers as the next Speaker of the House. He was from Missouri the last time of the election of a speaker and was shown.

Last year's football rules were really more successful to prevent injury to players than this year's, because they knew there was grave danger then and the wore all armor they could get on, while this year they have discarded the armor.

The bite of a scorpion is usually supposed to mean death, but one met its match the other day, when it bit a Western man. The scorpion died and the only noticeable effect upon the man was that he was stirred into activity and went hunting.

A young woman of Massachusetts is nearly 6 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 189 pounds, and is always in perfect training. What an elegant recruit for the suffragettes.

A woman's face is a whole lot more valuabe than a man's. If you don't believe it, just notice the damage claims made respectively by her and mere man for the loss of the nose or such an incidental.

When the Secretary of the Interior came to Washington county he hastened to don miner's clothes. Nothing like acting as a miner to become popular among that class of workers.

Flying is becoming just as dangerous a sport as automobiling or football. Under this year's football rules you can't assist the man with the ball. Wonder if that means to just stand around and watch him die.

WEDDING A NICE AFFAIR

The bride was attired in a white silk crepe de chence and wore a chiffon veil held in place by orange blossoms and edelweiss, the latter sent from Germany by a Northwestern University schoolmate. She also wore a choice bit of lace made by an aunt 89 years of age and carried an old family prayer book from which hung a pearl set cross, the gift of a Russian friend. Both Mr. and Mrs. Harrison are Northwestern graduates. Mr. Harrison is also a Harvard graduate, and is now a member of the editorial staff of the Survey Magazine of New York.

Among the company of 60 guests were Miss Mechem, the Misses Johnson, and Mr. Fitch from Pittsburg; Miss Hallam and Miss Roberts from Washington; Miss Slocum, an Alpha Phi sister, Mr Farley from Chicago; Miss Anna Galey from Beaver, and Miss Ruth Galey from Sewickley. Miss Elsie Crill of Charleroi played the Lohengrin wedding march for the ceremony, and Mendessohn's Spring Song for the reception.

Mr. and Mrs Harrison left amid showers of rice, on the 5:59 train for New York City and Boston. They will be at home after January fifteenth, in New York City.

CHURCH WEDDING OF WELL KNOWN YOUNG COUPLE

This morning at 10 o'clock at St. Jerome's rectory, Miss Eva Mauncheourt and George Brand were quietly married, the ceremony being performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. W. D. Fries. The couple were attended by Henry Lausberg, and Miss Barbara Brand. They will not take any trip for the present but will take up their residence at the home of the bride's parents on Third street. The groom is employed at the Macbeth-Evans glass plant. Both are well known and popular

For Drill Work

The Washington Avenue Boys' Brigade has leased the Charleroi Skating rink for Friday nights and will use it for drill work and athletic performances and amusement.

Speaking the universal language of the heart and reflecting like a mirror the innermost emotions of the mind, Stetson's Uncle Toms Cabin" is more than a stage play—it is a wonderful moral classic. It argues for the two really great themes that can engage the mind of man—human liberty and their immortality of the soul. It is a play that has long been a popular favorite with the infrequent theatregoers and regular patrons alike, and wheresoever the Stetson company appear, it is greeted with a crowded house. Specialties are introduced throughout the major number of scenes, so that the lover of high class vaudeville is well repaid for his time and money by attending the Stetson show, which will be seen at Coyle Theatre matinee and night Friday, November 25.

Are you interested in McCall patterns? We should like every woman who possibly can to come here Friday and meet Miss Paulus from The McCall Co.. You will not be asked to buy. J. W. Berryman and Son. 89t3

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to ADVERTISE in THIS PAPER

CROCODILE TEARS.

Old Legends That the Brutes Shed Them Over Their Prey.

There was an old story, to which we find constant reference in Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses largely developed lachrymal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.

As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find: "In that contre ben great plentee of Cokadrilles. Theise serpentes slen men, and thei eten hem wepynge."

An odd turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Hawkins' voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes: "His nature is ever, when he would have his prey to cry and sob like a Christian body, to provoke them to come to him, and then he snatcheth at them! And thereupon came this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymae crocodili, the meaning whereof is that as the crocodile when he crieth goeth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."

In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is forced where saffron groweth." Shakespeare, Spenser and Dryden allude to this old world fancy.

The Value of Tact.

A tactful person can make a whole roomful of people feel happy by conveying to them individually a tacit recognition of their individual accomplishments. To tell a shy girl that she is charming is to transform her and make her exercise her charms. To tell a dispirited man that he is courageous and clever is to put into him such an infusion of strength that he will be on the highroad to success.—Woman's Life.

Mistake of a Comma.

This instance of what a mistake of a comma can produce has been noticed:

"Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."—Circle Magazine.

The Symbolism Didn't Appeal.

"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock.

"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"

She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"—Chicago News.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the eighteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours—as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go; the rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the hourglass was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

The gentleman added that he expected every moment to hear him say "Everlastingly."

Stories of Frederick the Great.

In the course of some military evolutions Frederick the Great of Prussia, irritated by some mistake of a captain, ran after him with his stick in order to strike him. The captain ran away. The next morning the commanding officer reported to the king that the officer in question, one of the most efficient in the regiment, had sent in his papers. "Tell him to come to me," said the king. The officer, in great perturbation, came. "Good morning, major," he apostrophized the officer, who was speechless with surprise. "I wanted to tell you of your promotion, but you ran so fast I could not catch you up. Good morning."

Another time an officer attempted to get a comrade into bad odor with the king by telling his majesty that he was a drunkard. In a subsequent battle the latter's fitness was conspicuous, whereas his slanderer played a very poor part. When afterward he defiled past the king at the head of his regiment his majesty called out to him in a voice of thunder, "The sooner you take to drink the better!"

The Old Time Surgeon.

Before anaesthetics were known the surgeon's only expedient was to abridge his patient's sufferings by working rapidly. In this the old time surgeons did wonders. They had a control and a surety in their hands that are now seldom found. One day the celebrated surgeon Maisonneure had to amputate the leg of a poor devil, who began to howl in advance. "I'll give you my watch," said the surgeon, "if the operation lasts more than a minute." The man accepted the offer, but was obliged to forego the handsome watch, as the operation took less time than it requires to describe. To amputate an arm at the shoulder is a most difficult operation. Dr. Langenbeck of Germany did it in two minutes. A young physician who came to see him perform the operation adjusted his spectacles to his nose so as not to lose a single movement, but when the spectacles were in place the operation was over and the severed arm lay on the floor. Times have changed much since then.

FLED FROM BOREDOM.

The Tale of a Purposely Interrupted Yachting Cruise.

A few seasons back a well known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for August and invited a large number of her friends for a three weeks' cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted, but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.

The hostess marked these signs of incipient boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.

"What on earth shall I do to amuse these people?" she asked.

The yachtsman looked at the serene sky and calm, blue water and shook his head doubtfully.

"A storm would enliven them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a break down; the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs and let your guests have a run ashore Some of them, I expect, will find an excuse for bidding you goodby and those who remain with you will get along all right together."

The hostess took her guest's advice and arrived at Toulon a day later, where nigh twenty of her guests bid her goodby.—London M. A. P.

Lungs Declared Sound—Life Insurance Granted.

If you knew a remedy that really had cured Tuberculosis; that had saved from death quite a number of people, would you try to get Consumptives interested in it and induce them to take it; or, would you say nothing about it, for fear of giving offence?

We know the medicine. We know the people cured—some of them. We have the stories of cure of many—and affidavits from some. We advertise Eckman's Alterative to tell those who have lung disease what has been done by its use. Investigate the following:

1618 W. Dauphin St., Phila., Pa.

Gentlemen: "On the evening of May 13, 1907, I had five hemorrhages from the right lung. My hemorrhages kept up for one week—I had twenty-eight in all. Septic pneumonia developed. My doctor told me I had better go to another climate as my left lung had also become affected.

About that time I met Howard Klotz 1619 Susquehanna Ave., this city, who had hemorrhages several years ago and who was cured by Eckman's Alterative.

I started to take Eckman's about the latter part of August, 1907. My appetite improved at once and in about two weeks I started to gain weight. I improved steadily. Later, a very bad lameness developed in my right leg and I commenced to get a lump on my right hip. My doctor told me I was getting a tubercular abscess and that it was affecting the sciatic nerve. The lameness and lump gradually disappeared. Have not had any trouble of that nature since.

Since my recovery about a year ago, I was accepted for life insurance, after two examinations by a company that had previously refected me.

I have advised several people to take Eckman's and those who took it faithfully had the same results as myself."

(Signed Affidavit) CHAS. MORGAN.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists and

HE WAS NOT A FLIRT.

Therefore He Resented the Woman's Attempts at Familiarity.

He was riding homeward, comfortably seated and reading his paper. Being a trifle nearsighted, he was applying himself even more closely to his paper than other homegoing passengers. Thus intent in the day's news, he was startled when a woman came up beside him and touched him lightly on the shoulder, at the same time casting a longing eye on his seat.

He is a polite man, and he got up. "A woman with that much nerve is entitled to a seat," he muttered to himself. "The idea of a woman deliberately nudging a man out of his seat!" Other women standing near by laughed unreservedly. He hid his embarrassment behind his paper for he felt that his good nature had been imposed upon and that the laugh was on him.

By and by there was a vacant seat next to the one he had given up to the woman and he sat down on it more. The woman turned and looked at him amusedly. He could feel her gaze, even though he made a bluff at being intensely interested in his paper. Pretty raw, it seemed to him, for a woman deliberately to take the seat of a total stranger and then sit there and laugh at him because he was shocked.

Then the woman spoke to him. "Aren't you going to talk to me?" she asked.

He could stand her familiarity no longer. "Well of all the"— He stopped right there when he looked around and recognized her. It was his wife!—Cleveland Leader.

REVENUE CUTTERS.

Varied Duties of the Life Savers of the Seas.

No men in the service of Uncle Sam render more efficient service than do those of the revenue cutter service. The term "revenue," which would indicate that their duties were restricted to those pertaining to the proper enforcement of the revenue laws, can give but a faint notion of the varied duties of this splendid corps of men. As a matter of fact, revenue cutters are the life savers of the seas. They patrol the coasts on regular beats, on the watch for vessels in distress. They must suppress mutinies, prevent smuggling and illicit seal hunting; they must examine ships' papers, enforce quarantine regulations, supply lighthouses and in general do all kinds of police [illegible] they have been called the boys of the seas."

Alexander Hamilton was the father of the revenue service, for it was under his administration of the treasury department that, in 1791, ten cutters were built and put in commission under rules of his own devising. In time of peace the cutters are under the supervision of the treasury department, but in times of war they are transferred to that of the navy department. Since the war of 1812 they have always rendered excellent service in the event of armed hostilities. Every one remembers the remarkable work done by the McCulloch, under Dewey, at the battle of Manila Bay.—New York Press.

Easy Figuring.

Bank President—Oh, yes. We knew in a very short time.

Ascum—Why, I thought he took a great deal.

Bank President—Exactly. We merely had to count what he left.

Why He Resigned.

"So you resigned!"

"Yes. I couldn't stand the way the firm treated me."

"What did they do?"

"Took my name off the pay roll."—Exchange.

A King's Trick.

King Gustavus III. of Sweden had been frequently invited to the little court of Schwerin. In 1783 he paid a visit to Germany, and as soon as the Duchess of Mecklenburg heard of his approach she prepared fetes in his honor. But Gustavus, who disdained the petty courts of the small rulers, sent two of his attendants—a page named Peyron and Desvouges, a valet who had formerly been an actor—to be entertained by the duchess. The two personated the king and his minister, Baron Sparre, and sustained the characters throughout. They accepted as their due all the homage meant for their master, danced with the Mecklenburg ladies who were presented to them, and Peyron went so far as to ask one of the ladies for her portrait. Meantime Gustavus was enjoying himself elsewhere in secret.

Richmond Castle.

Richmond castle was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond, and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when king of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—London Globe.

A Step Backward

It is stated that the commission appointed by Governor Stuart to revise and codify the election laws of Pennsylvania has decided to recommend the vest pocket or envelope system of voting. This will give the voter the privilege of getting ballots the day before election, so that they can mark them in their own home or elsewhere seal them in an envelope, and deposit them in the ballot boxes on the day of election. The ostensible reason for this recommendation is to do away with assistance at the polls, whereby it is alleged voters are influenced and controlled on election day.

In view of previous experience with the unofficial ballots before the passage of the Baker ballot law, it is surprising that the commission should make such a recommendation. With ballots accessible outside of the booths on election day, they were marked, handed to the voter, and the latter led to the polls and voted by heelers and ward workers. In no other way can assistance, control or intimidation be more effectually worked than by having access to the ballots outside of the polls. There is little complaint of assistance in the election booths outsde of the large cities, and if this is really an abuse there should be other ways for correcting it than throwing the entire system open to manipulation and control the same as it was before the passage of the Baker ballot law. Surely such a recommendation as the vest pocket law cannot be made in the interests of ballot reform. Should it be adopted it will be a step backward.

A Progressive Platform

Following the sweep of insurgency at the recent elections, a currant periodical has codified Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's political policies as expreessed in his Osawatomie speech. This the magazine terms a "Progressive Platform," the principal features of which are:

"Complete publicity of corporate affairs.

"Laws prohibiting the use of corporate funds directly or indirectly or political purposes, and thorough enforcement of them.

"Government supervision of the capitalization of public service corporations, particularly railways; and of all corporations doing an interstate business.

"Effective regulation of railways based on information which shall include physical valuation.

"Similar control over all combinations which control necessaries of life or deal in them on an important scale.

"Personal responsibility of officers and directors of corporations who violate the law.

"Large increase of power for the Federal Bureau of Corporations and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"An expert tariff commission.

"Revision of the tariff, one schedule at a time, as fast as the commission can make recommendations.

"A graduated inheritance tax on big fortunes, increasing rapidly in amount with the size of the estate.

"Comprehensive workmen's compensation acts; State and national laws to regulate child labor and the work of women. The right to regulate 'the terms and conditions of labor.'

"Direct primaries, associated with a corrupt practices act and publicity of election expenses.

"An easy way to remove unfaithful or incompetent servants.

Forbidding of the receipt by any national officer elected or appointed of any compensation, directly or indirectly from interstate corporations"

This is a most radical platform, and it is hardly possible that all of its provisions could be approved by the people and carried out at one fell swoop. It is along the line of progressiveism—the point where the public service must eventually be divorced from politics and put on a purely business basis for the greatest good of the greatest number. This is the substance of the insurgent movement, government for the people, and the platform of Colonel Roosevelt at least is a guide, which though more or less idealistic at the pesent time, is nevertheless capable of incorporation into public approval and practice.

A Local Matter

Commenting upon a Washington newspaper's chagrin over the refusal of the grand jury to approve a soldiers and sailors memorial hall for Washington to be erected at the expense of the county, the Monongahela Time says:

"We can not do otherwise than approve of the action of grand jury as wise and just. If Washington wishes to have a memorial to the memory of the men who served in the civil war there is no one in the ccounty to object but let the citizens of that community go down into their pockets, like the veterans of Monongahela, did when they established a memorial to the honor of their dead comrades. The Monongahela Memorial Hospital is such an institution, promoted by the veteran of Monongahela, and all the expense of the launching and establishing of this undertaking was taken care of in this city and vicinity."

The Times is further of the opinion that if the county commissioners want to do something for the memory of the men who answered their country's call, it should be done locally. There are soldiers dead in every community who are as much entitled to have their memory perpetuated as those who went forth and gave up their lives from the county seat.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Let's see, has anything been said about the tariff for two days?

It doesn't cost much to see men killed. Automobile races occur nearly every day and the admission fee is small.

Champ Clark of Missouri is announced by Democratic papers as the next Speaker of the House. He was from Missouri the last time of the election of a speaker and was shown.

Last year's football rules were really more successful to prevent injury to players than this year's, because they knew there was grave danger then and the wore all armor they could get on, while this year they have discarded the armor.

The bite of a scorpion is usually supposed to mean death, but one met its match the other day, when it bit a Western man. The scorpion died and the only noticeable effect upon the man was that he was stirred into activity and went hunting.

A young woman of Massachusetts is nearly 6 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 189 pounds, and is always in perfect training. What an elegant recruit for the suffragettes.

A woman's face is a whole lot more valuabe than a man's. If you don't believe it, just notice the damage claims made respectively by her and mere man for the loss of the nose or such an incidental.

When the Secretary of the Interior came to Washington county he hastened to don miner's clothes. Nothing like acting as a miner to become popular among that class of workers.

Flying is becoming just as dangerous a sport as automobiling or football. Under this year's football rules you can't assist the man with the ball. Wonder if that means to just stand around and watch him die.

The bride was attired in a white silk crepe de chence and wore a chiffon veil held in place by orange blossoms and edelweiss, the latter sent from Germany by a Northwestern University schoolmate. She also wore a choice bit of lace made by an aunt 89 years of age and carried an old family prayer book from which hung a pearl set cross, the gift of a Russian friend. Both Mr. and Mrs. Harrison are Northwestern graduates. Mr. Harrison is also a Harvard graduate, and is now a member of the editorial staff of the Survey Magazine of New York.

Among the company of 60 guests were Miss Mechem, the Misses Johnson, and Mr. Fitch from Pittsburg; Miss Hallam and Miss Roberts from Washington; Miss Slocum, an Alpha Phi sister, Mr Farley from Chicago; Miss Anna Galey from Beaver, and Miss Ruth Galey from Sewickley. Miss Elsie Crill of Charleroi played the Lohengrin wedding march for the ceremony, and Mendessohn's Spring Song for the reception.

Mr. and Mrs Harrison left amid showers of rice, on the 5:59 train for New York City and Boston. They will be at home after January fifteenth, in New York City.

CHURCH WEDDING OF WELL KNOWN YOUNG COUPLE

This morning at 10 o'clock at St. Jerome's rectory, Miss Eva Maunchecourt and George Brand were quietly married, the ceremony being performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. W. D. Fries. The couple were attended by Henry Lausberg, and Miss Barbara Brand. They will not take any trip for the present but will take up their residence at the home of the bride's parents on Third street. The groom is employed at the Macbeth-Evans glass plant. Both are well known and popular

For Drill Work

Speaking the universal language of the heart and reflecting like a mirror the innermost emotions of the mind, Stetson's Uncle Toms Cabin" is more than a stage play—it is a wonderful moral classic. It argues for the two really great themes that can engage the mind of man—human liberty and their immortality of the soul. It is a play that has long been a popular favorite with the infrequent theatregoers and regular patrons alike, and wheresoever the Stetson company appear, it is greeted with a crowded house. Specialties are introduced throughout the major number of scenes, so that the lover of high class vaudeville is well repaid for his time and money by attending the Stetson show, which will be seen at Coyle Theatre matinee and night Friday, November 25.

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

CROCODILE TEARS.

Old Legends That the Brutes Shed Them Over Their Prey.

There was an old story, to which we find constant reference in Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses largely developed lachrymal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.

As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find: "In that contre ben great plentee of Cokadrilles. Theise serpentes slen men, and thei eten hem weprynge."

An odd turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Hawkins' voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes: "His nature is ever, when he would have his prey to cry and sob like a Christian body, to provoke them to come to him, and then he snatched at them! And thereupon come this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymae crocodilli, the meaning whereof is that as the crocodile when he crieth goeth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."

In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is forced where saffron groweth." Shakespeare, Spenser and Dryden allude to this old world fancy.

The Value of Tact.

A tactful person can make a whole roomful of people feel happy by conveying to them individually a tacit recognition of their individual accomplishments. To tell a shy girl that she is charming is to transform her and make her exercise her charm. To tell a dispirited man that he is courageous and clever is to put into him such an infusion of strength that he will be on the highroad to success.—Woman's Life.

Mistake of a Comma.

This instance of what a mistake of a comma can produce has been noticed:

"Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."—Circle Magazine.

The Symbolism Didn't Appeal.

"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock.

"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"

She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"—Chicago News.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the eighteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours—as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go; the rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the hourglass was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

The gentleman added that he expected every moment to hear him say "Everlastingly."

Stories of Frederick the Great.

In the course of some military evolutions Frederick the Great of Prussia, irritated by some mistake of a captain, ran after him with his stick in order to strike him. The captain ran away. The next morning the commanding officer reported to the king that the officer in question, one of the most efficient in the regiment, had sent in his papers. "Tell him to come to me," said the king. The officer, in great perturbation, came. "Good morning, major," he apostrophized the officer, who was speechless with surprise. "I wanted to tell you of your promotion. But you run so fast I could not catch you up. Good morning."

Another time an officer attempted to get a comrade into bad odor with the king by telling his majesty that he was a drunkard. In a subsequent battle the latter's fitness was conspicuous, whereas his slanderer played a very poor part. When afterward he defiled past the king at the head of his regiment his majesty called out to him in a voice of thunder, "The sooner you take to drink the better!"

The Old Time Surgeon.

Before anaesthetics were known the surgeon's only expedient was to abridge his patient's sufferings by working rapidly. In this the old time surgeons did wonders. They had a control and a surety in their hands that are now seldom found. One day the celebrated surgeon Maisonneure had to amputate the leg of a poor devil, who began to howl in advance. "I'll give you my watch," said the surgeon, "if the operation lasts more than a minute." The man accepted the offer, but was obliged to forego the handsome watch, as the operation took less time than it requires to describe. To amputate an arm at the shoulder is a most difficult operation. Dr. Langenbeck of Germany did it in two minutes. A young physician who came to see him perform the operation adjusted his spectacles to his nose so as not to lose a single movement, but when the spectacles were in place the operation was over and the severed arm lay on the floor. Times have changed much since then.

FLED FROM BOREDOM.

The Tale of a Purposely Interrupted Yachting Cruise.

A few seasons back a well known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for August and invited a large number of her friends for a three weeks' cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted, but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.

The hostess marked these signs of incipient boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.

"What on earth shall I do to amuse these people?" she asked.

The yachtsman looked at the serene sky and calm, blue water and shook his head doubtfully.

"A storm would enliven them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a breakdown; the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs and let your guests have a run ashore. Some of them, I expect, will find an excuse for bidding you goodby and those who remain with you will get along all right together."

The hostess took her guest's advice and arrived at Toulon a day later, where nigh twenty of her guests bid her goodby.—London M. A. P.

Lungs Declared Sound—Life Insurance Granted.

If you knew a remedy that really had cured Tuberculosis; that had saved from death quite a number of people, would you try to get Consumptives interested in it and induce them to take it; or, would you say nothing about it, for fear of giving offence?

We know the medicine. We know the people cured—some of them. We have the stories of cure of many—and affidavits from some. We advertise Eckman's Alterative to tell those who have lung disease what has been done by its use. Investigate the following:

1618 W. Dauphin St., Phila., Pa.

Gentlemen: "On the evening of May 13, 1907, I had five hemorrhages from the right lung. My hemorrhages kept up for one week—I had twenty-eight in all. Septic pneumonia developed. My doctor told me I had better go to another climate as my left lung had also become affected.

About that time I met Howard Klotz 1619 Susquehanna Ave., this city, who had hemorrhages several years ago and who was cured by Eckman's Alterative.

I started to take Eckman's about the latter part of August, 1907. My appetite improved at once and in about two weeks I started to gain weight. I improved steadily. Later, a very bad lameness developed in my right leg and I commenced to get a lump on my right hip. My doctor told me I was getting a tubercular abscess and that it was affecting the sciatic nerve. The lameness and lump gradually disappeared. Have not had any trouble of that nature since.

Since my recovery about a year ago, I was accepted for life insurance, after two examinations by a company that had previously rejected me.

I have advised several people to take Eckman's and those who took it faithfully had the same results as myself."

(Signed Affidavit) CHAS. MORGAN.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists and

HE WAS NOT A FLIRT.

Therefore He Resented the Woman's Attempts at Familiarity.

He was riding homeward, comfortably seated and reading his paper. Being a trifle nearsighted, he was applying himself even more closely to his paper than other homegoing passengers. Thus intent in the day's news, he was startled when a woman came up beside him and touched him lightly on the shoulder, at the same time casting a longing eye on his seat.

He is a polite man, and he got up. "A woman with that much nerve is entitled to a seat," he muttered to himself. "The idea of a woman deliberately nudging a man out of his seat!" Other women standing near by laughed unreservedly. He hid his embarrassment behind his paper, for he felt that his good nature had been imposed upon and that the laugh was on him.

By and by there was a vacant seat next to the one he had given up to the woman, and he sat down once more. The woman turned and looked at him amusedly. He could feel her gaze, even though he made a bluff at being intensely interested in his paper. Pretty raw, it seemed to him, for a woman deliberately to take the seat of a total stranger and then sit there [illegible] because he was sitting next to a man.

[illegible] the woman spoke to him. "Aren't you going to talk to me?" she asked.

He could stand her familiarity no longer. "Well, of all the"— He stopped right there when he looked around and recognized her. It was his wife!—Cleveland Leader.

REVENUE CUTTERS.

Varied Duties of the Life Savers of the Seas.

No men in the service of Uncle Sam render more efficient service than do those of the revenue cutter service. The term "revenue," which would indicate that their duties were restricted to those pertaining to the proper enforcement of the revenue laws, can give but a faint notion of the varied duties of this splendid corps of men. As a matter of fact, revenue cutters are the life savers of the seas. They patrol the coasts on regular beats, on the watch for vessels in distress. They must suppress mutinies, prevent smuggling and illicit seal hunting; they must examine ships' papers, enforce quarantine regulations, supply lighthouses and in general do all kinds of police [illegible] They have been [illegible] boys of the seas."

Alexander Hamilton was the father of the revenue cutter service, for it was under his administration of the treasury department that, in 1791, ten cutters were built and put in commission under rules of his own devising. In time of peace the cutters are under the supervision of the treasury department, but in times of war they are transferred to that of the navy department. Since the war of 1812 they have always rendered excellent service in the event of armed hostilities. Every one remembers the remarkable work done by the McCulloch, under Dewey, at the battle of Manila Bay.—New York Press.

Easy Figuring.

Ascum—I suppose you haven't had time to figure out yet how much your cashier took?

Bank President—Oh, yes. We knew in a very short time.

Ascum—Why, I thought he took a great deal.

Bank President—Exactly. We merely had to count what he left.

Why He Resigned.

"So you resigned!"

"Yes. I couldn't stand the way the firm treated me."

"What did they do?"

"Took my name off the pay roll."—Exchange.

A King's Trick.

King Gustavus III. of Sweden had been frequently invited to the little court of Schwerin. In 1783 he paid a visit to Germany, and as soon as the Duchess of Mecklenburg heard of his approach she prepared fetes in his honor. But Gustavus, who disdained the petty courts of the small rulers, sent two of his attendants—a page named Peyron and Desvouges, a valet who had formerly been an actor—to be entertained by the duchess. The two personated the king and his minister, Baron Sparre, and sustained the characters throughout. They accepted as their due all the homage meant for their master, danced with the Mecklenburg ladies who were presented to them, and Peyron went so far as to ask one of the ladies for her portrait. Meantime Gustavus was enjoying himself elsewhere in secret.

Richmond Castle.

Richmond castle was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond, and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when king of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—London Globe.
